Hurdles young transgender individuals and their families face during the affirmation process

Dr. Ian Marshall Pediatrics endocrinology

Dr. Marshall is the Director of Pediatric Endocrinology and an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at Rutgers Robert Wood Johnson Medical School. With Dr. Gloria Bachmann he co-leads the health and educational efforts of The Gender Center of New Jersey at RWJMS. Collaboratively, they coordinate and provide care for transgender individuals at different stages of gender affirmation treatment, from adolescence through senior adulthood. They also assist in the education and training of medical students, residents, colleagues and other health professionals in the care of transgender and non-binary individuals.
